Dear Honorable Robert E. Gerber,

My name is Timothy Hill an hourly worker at General Motors, I received a letter saying my (PSP) Personal Savings Plan would be placed in another account to protect it from the bankruptcy issue, but I lost my common stock which was to be part of my retirement also. Why wasn't my stock protected? My problem is why was I labeled as a debtor? When I invested in the company I work for, for more than 25yrs. I considered myself as part owner in the business, a very small part, but a dedicated and hard worker. I put my trust in those who were in charge to do the right thing. Now that the company is doing better, why can't I get my stock back? I'm afraid to purchase anymore. While all of this was happening, I had to relocate to keep my job.

Managing a home in Atlanta while living in Kansas is not easy, I've been bombarded with other papers that are sent to Atlanta from GM concerning everything from this bankruptcy, insurance, medical and benefits. Right now I'm just trying to stay sane.

Regards,

Timothy Hill
